The Chase: Weather Photography

Friday March 27, 2026 – 7:30 eastern Time)

Topic

Have you ever wondered what it's like to go on a storm chase?? Maybe it's not for everyone, but for the fearless among us it CAN be exhilarating.

My talk will discuss how I got interested in storm chasing, what the typical day of a storm chaser entails, what photo gear to bring along, strategy for capturing stunning images of storms, lightning, and the most gorgeous cloud formations you can imagine. Mother Nature never disappoints!

Bio

Jennifer Dooley first discovered her interest in photography in 1990. She met a coworker with an unsteady hand who always produced blurry pictures. So she asked if she could try out the camera and instantly fell in love. Jennifer has attended photography workshops from a wide variety of subject matter experts, both domestic and abroad. She regularly exhibits in juried photography shows. She has a very analytical mind which allows her to enjoy careful consideration of composition, technique and creativity across a broad range of subjects. Jennifer enjoys photographing flowers, architecture, cars, street scenes, weather, animals; she's interested in photographing just about anything. Whatever the subject, her eye always gravitates towards graphic shapes, patterns, perspective and leading lines which are ubiquitous.
